

FEAST

Predator-prey relationships in the natural world.
A photography exhibit by Brad Hill.

May 17 - July 22, 2012

To eat or be eaten? Through stunning photographs, internationally acclaimed nature photographer Brad Hill presents an intimate look at animals feasting in the wild. Whether in the air, on land, or in water, Brad addresses the challenge of photographing wild and unpredictable animals at one of their most fundamental behaviours.

"It's about striving to find and expose the art inherent in nature. It's about increasing the awareness of the beauty, fragility and ephemerality of the natural world."

—Brad Hill

Brad Hill is an internationally renowned nature photographer with a focus on conservation.
www.naturalart.ca

Free with admission or membership

beatymuseum.ubc.ca

